UNBELIEVED AT WASHINGTON.

SAYS PEKIN COULD NOT BE RETAKEN

It Is Certain That General Chaffee Had No Reason to Fear Such Thing as Late as Last Thursday, and if Pekin is Retakea it Must Have Been Saturday or Sunday.

By Wire to the Telegram.

Washington, Aug. 28.—No confirmation has been received here of the reported massacre of the allied troops in Pekin. The War and Navy Departments do not believe the St. Petersburg report of a disaster to the allies, They have had several messages from Pekin, none of which mention the presence of Chinese forces near Pekin.

The First United States Cavalry arrived at Kobe this morning and were ordered to Manila instead of to China.

A cablegram received at the State Department this morning from United States Consul Johnson at Amoy reports that many of the richer Chinamen and Europeans are leaving that place.

ST. PETERSBURG STORY NOT BELIEVED.

Washington, Aug. 28.—The War Department of course does not believe the reports from St. Peteesburg of the recapture of Pekin and the de'eat of the allied forces. Several messages have been received from Pekin, none of which mentioned threatening trouble and very large force of Chinese could not have gotten there without the allies learning their presence several days before the attack was to be made. It is certain that Gen. Chaffee as late as Thursday last had no occasion to believe the Chinese would assault in force and if Pekin has been retaken, it must have been either Saturday or Sunday. The State Department say they do not believe the St. Petersburg story and they are in a good position to discredit such a story.

PRIVATE MESSAGE FROM CONGER.

New York, Aug. 28.—As tending to show that Minister Conger is in close touch with cable communication, Charles R. Flint has received a private cablegram, under date of August 27th, from Taku and signed by Conger. This was in response to a cablegram sent Minister Conger by Mr. Flint a few days ago.

A MESSAGE FROM CRONGER.

Washington, Aug. 27.—After several days intermission in Chinese advices, the government today received two dispatches, which presumably bring its advices up to the most recent date. There are indications that the principal delays in the lines of communication are encountered between Tien-Tsin and Pekin, a fact explainable by the newspaper advices that small bands of Boxers are opering on the line of communication of the Pekin campaign force. Just such interference with th work of the signal corps men was experienced by the United States in the Philippines and by Lord Roberts' troops in the Transvaal campaign Usually these interruptions are very short, the maraude s being driven off and the lines restored within a day or two. The fact that more than a week was covered by the last interruption gives rise to the belief that these attacks upon the lines of communication by Boxers are more formidable than was supposed to be possible, after the heavy losses infl cted upon them by the internatio al force in its advance. The important dispatch of the day was one from Minister Conger relative to the military situation in Pekin.

"Taku, August 27.

"Secretary of State Washington:

"No important movements since last dispatch. Military is trying to restore order. No representative of the Chinese government encountered yet. Several ministers of the Tsung Li Yamen reported in the city, and are expected to appear soon. Generals decide not to enter the imperial palace, leaving it practically vacant. Two thousand Germans arrived today.

"CONGER."

This disaatch is undated, but from the fact that it mentions the arrival of a German force at Pekin, which has not yet been reported from any other quarter, it is presumed to be of very recent origin.

Unfortunately the dispatch lacked a date, the minister presumably not having yet received the Department's instruction to include the date in the body of his dispatches. From internal evidence, the State Department concluded that Mr. Conger's message was certainly later than any official emanation from the Chinese capital. Mr. Conger's reference to the arrival of 2,000 fresh German troops, caused some surprise, no one apparently having closely watched the movements of the German contingent, which is now arriving with fairly regular frequency in China, and which consequently may be expected soon to equal in numerical strength the military contingents of any of the European nations there represented.

A significant statement in Minister Conger's dispatch is that respecting the expected appearance in Pekin of some of the members of the Tsung Li Yamen. A natural construction to be given to this statement is that these ministers wish to undertake to represent the Chinese government formally in negotiations with the powers. It having been found impossible up to this moment, according to Mr. Conger's statement, to meet any representative of the Chinese government in Pekin competent to open negotiations, it may be inferred that if these ministers actually appear with proper credentials, one of the problems connected with the present difficult situation in China will be solved. With some responsible person or persons to deal with, it may be possible for the United States to come to some agreement as to a settlement of the Chinese trouble.

Ever since the fall of Pekin, the principal difficulty confronting the government here has been to arrange for the next movement in its program. It could not withdraw its troops, even if so disposed, without arranging for indemnification for the heavy cost it has been put to in the Pekin campaign. Also, it must make arrangements with some responsible authority for the future protection of American interests in China, as our business interests cannot be withdrawn along with the army of occupation. Therefore, as conveying a faint hope that in the persons of these members of the Tsung Li Yamen there may be found some authorized representative of the Chinese government competent to make engagements on these points, the message of Mr. Conger was very welcome to the authorities here. Another statement in Mr Conger's dispatch relative to the decision of the generals not to enter the imperial palace, appears to explain the movement of the American troops, which the press dispatches were unable to clear up, in relaxing the attack, upon the palace gates, after capturing all but one of them.

RUSSIAN RUMOR OF A FIERCE BATTLE

Paris, Aug. 28, 4:25 a. m.—A special dispatch to Lesirele, from St. Petersbug, says:

"It is persistenly rumored in St. Petersburg that the Russian government has received a dispatch asserting that after a fierce battle inside Pekin, the allies retreated, losing 1,800 men, mostly Russians. It is further said that the Chinese occupy fortified positions, from which they are bombarding the allies in a murderous manner."

ASSAULTED AN OFFICER.

Will Collins Goes on the Warpath and Attempts to Whip Chief Scott.

While drunk and in a very bad humor this afternoon Will Collins assaulted Chief of Police Scott, striking him a severe blow over the eye. Mr. Scott was passing along the street when he was accosted by Collins, who was spoiling for a fight. The officer paid no attention to him until his language became profane and abusive. When Chief Scott turned to arrest him he received a blow over the eye from Collins, who was then carried to jail.

Assaulting an officer is pretty serious business, and the fact that Collins was looking for Chief Scott, with the avowed intention of whipping him, will make it go hard with him.

While at work in the Cape Fear Manufacturing Company's factory today Mr. John Crouse was badly injured by a band saw, being cut across the knee.

DOWN AN ELEVATOR SHAFT.

A SEVEN YEAR OLD'S LONG FALL.

Ben, the Young Son of W. H. Rees Takes An Extraordinary Trip, and Though Nearly Killed is O. K. Today—Mr. Rrandt's Little Boy Also Painfully Hurt.

While playing around in G. O. Wison & Co's tobacco factory late yesterday afternoon Master Ben, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rees, fell through the elevator shafting to the ground floor, a distance of two and a half stories. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and carried to his home nearby. It was at first feared that he was seriously, if not fatally, injured, but an examination showed that no bones were broken. Beyond a few bruises, he is uninjured, and today he is as chipper as if he had not courted death through an elevator shafting.

Ben has had more dangerous experiences than the average boy of seven summers. A year or so ago he fell from a tree and broke his arm.

Yesterday evening George, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Brandt, who reside on North Davie street, was thrown from a little express wagon and right painfully injured. He fell against the curbing, cutting his tongue and bruising his face. He suffered much pain immediately after the accident and last night, but is all right today.

A number of South Greensboro young people went out to Boon's pond this morning to enjoy a picnic. Among those in the crowd were Misses Cartland, Ella Barringer, Nellie Glascock, Elma Stone and Lystra Clendenin, and Will Glascock, Charlie Mendenhall, Joe Phillips and Leon C endenin.

The party was chaperoned by Miss Maggie Kelley.

The Hog Pen Question.

Every day people come into The Telegram office and ask us to keep up the crusade against the hog pen nuisance. The Telegram has time and again called attention to this nuisance, saying about all it knows to say. However, the columns of the paper are open to anybody who may wish to say anything on either side of the question, so if you are interested in the matter fire away at it and the Aldermen will see what you have to say.

Hog Pens.

To the Editor of the Telegram:

Any other animal except the hog, confined in a hog pen—such nasty, stinking hog pens as are tolerated in Greensboro—would soon be killed by it. The hog is the only animal that can stand it. It is a known fact that neither strychnine nor the poison of a rattle snake will kill or even hurt a hog. R. K. GREGORY, M. D.

Death of Mrs. Lowrey.

A HUNG JURY.

Verdict Hard to Reach in the Last Case on the Docket—Civil Causes Taken Up.

The last case tried on the criminal docket of the Superior Court for this term was State vs. Roscoe Murray, charged with carrying concealed weapons. The case was given to the jury yesterday afternoon, but they failed to return a verdict before the adjournment of court. This morning an officer reported that a verdict was still out of sight, and during the long, hot day the jurors have been in their stuffy little room trying to decide whether the defendant was guilty of carrying a pair of knucks.

When court opened this morning the civil docket was taken up, the first case called being Smith vs. Royal Arcanum. This is a suit for life insurance money. The trial is still in progress.

MASS MEETING FOR THE FAIR.

Gen. Carr Will be Present and Deliver an Address.

A greater interest among the general public in the Central Carolina Fair is needed, and efforts are being made to arouse such an interest. To this end a mass meeting of the people of Greensboro and surrounding county will be held in the court house Thursday night, September 6th. Gen. Julian S. Carr, of Durham, has accepted an invitation to be present and deliver an address on the occasion.

It is earnestly hoped that the people will attend the meeting and at least show by their presence that they are interested in the success of the fair.

Mr. Weaver Goes to College.

AT WESTMINSTER.

Protracted Services Opened Last Night. Good Sermons by Mr. Little.

The protracted service at West Minster church opened last night with a good attendance. Mr. Little preached an earnest and impressive sermon on the subject of "Faith," taking as his text Gen. 12:4, "So Abram departed, as the Lord had spoken unto him."

This morning at 11 o'clock Mr. Little preached another very helpful sermon on "Spiritual Retreats," his text being Gen. xii: 10, "And there was a famine in the land: and Abram went down into Egypt to sojourn there; for the famine was grievous in the land." All who have heard these two sermons are very much pleased with Mr. Little's preaching. He preaches with great earnestness and fluency and with emotion from the Holy One.

There will be preaching tonight at 8 o'clock, and again tomorrow at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. At the morning service tomorrow Mr. Little will begin a series of sermons on the "Holy Spirit." All Christians who are seeking a higher plane of Christian living will find this series of sermons very helpful. The public is most cordially invited to attend these services.

DEFYING THE LAW.

Dick Morse in Asheville Blowing His Foghorn.

Some of the people in Greensboro have not forgotten one Dick Morse, the perambulating evangelist and temperance advocate who has visited this city on his rounds. Once he was arrested and marched off to jail for making a nuisance of himself on South Elm street. At present he is operating in Asheville, as witness the following from The Citizen.

R. H. ("Dick") Morse, the temperance lecturer whose foghorn notes of warning disturbed people on the square and caused his arrest, announced through The Citizen yesterday that he would court arrest by speaking on the square this evening, against the injunction put upon him in police court a few days ago. Mr. Morse should consider well before he breaks the law and thus compels the police to arrest him again When he violates the law he hurts the cause in which he is laboring. He may feel that the law is unjust, but that will not justify his becoming a law breaker after he has had full notice. The way to be rid of a law that is found to be bad is not by violating it.

TONIGHT'S MARRIAGE.

The Little People Who Will Compose the Wedding Party.

The Tom Thumb wedding takes place tonight promptly at 8:30 o'clock. The wedding party consists of Miss Margaret Bradshaw, bride; Master Cutlar Watkins, groom; Miss Edith Forbis, maid of honor; Master Harry Williams, groomsman. Attendants: Miss Ruth Mendenhall and Master Rodrick Stamey; Miss Ellen Cutchin and Master Harry Brockmann; Miss Ida Cartland and Master Harry Clendenin; Miss Nelson Walsh and Master Herbert Brockman; Miss Margaret Callum and Master Hugh Scott; Miss Mabel Ridge and Master John Brodnax; Page, Master Charles Meekins; Preacher, Master Bert Eldridge.

Trojan in Town.

One of The Telegram's valued contributors, Trojan, (Rev. John C. Troy, of Jonesboro,) spent last night in the city, leaving this morning for Asheville, where he goes to attend the meeting of the North Carolina Press Association. Mr. Troy has many friends in Greensboro who are always pleased to meet him. He carries sunshine wherever he goes and one can but feel the influence of his hopeful spirit and bright disposition.

Young People Enjoy Themselves.

The "Just for Fun Club," the younger set's unique social organization, held a most interesting meeting at the home of Maj. L. M. Scott, on Fayetteville street, last night. The young people were delightfully entertained by Miss Marie Reynolds, a popular member of the club.

To Attend Guilford College.

Several Greensboro boys will enter Guilford College at the opening of the fall term next Tuesday, among them being Messrs. Elmer Leak, Percy Gentry, Clinton Gentry, Jack Love, Roland Hill, and perhaps others.

TOM JONES WAS BAPTIZED.

MURDERER TO BE HANGED FRIDAY.

Has Sold His Body for $10 and Even the Negroes Will Have Nothing to Do With Him—The Gloomy Crop Report—Fires in Hyde—The Drought as a Punishment for Sin—Bar Keeper Falls Dead.

Special Correspondence of The Telegram.

Raleigh, Aug 28.—The crop report for North Carolina for the week ended last night, issued by the government today, is like the two proceeding ones, very unfavorable, indeed. It says, that while rains have been frequent in many eastern counties, as well as on the east slope of the Blue Ridge, from the 20th to 24th, the rainfall was very irregularly distributed and generally insufficient, and, though refreshing to some late crops, the effects have not lasted long, and the soil now appears to be as dry as ever. Crop conditions are more diversified than ever and difficult to summarize. Where rains partially broke the drought late corn and cotton have been benefited, also field peas and potatoes; and in the west sowing turnips and turning land for wheat was possibly early in the week. The temperature has continued unusually high, averaging again nearly 7 degrees daily above normal, and the complete absence of rain over large areas makes it impossible to consider the drought broken, or to report any material improvement in crop prospects for the State at large. On the contrary where rains have occured they generally came too late (except possibly over extreme western counties) to increase the probable yield of staple crops, which have continued to suffer fearfully in sections where no rain has fallen. Forest fires in northeastern counties have been very destructive to timber. The great damage caused by the heat and drought to cotton has now become fully apparent; many fields present the appearance which they usually have at the end of September; rust is reported in many counties; bolls are opening very rapidly everywhere, but the bolls are imperfect, generally being from one-half to three-fourths of full size; picking is in progress; still, late cotton in many counties was improved by rain, and late blooms are reported by correspondents in Chatham and Rutherford counties. Young corn is promising only where rains have been most frequent this week; the yield of corn will unquestionably be very short; pulling fodder is still underway. Tobacco in many sections has fired again, and cures are of poor quality on account of premature ripening. Necessarily sweet potatoes, field peas, and peanuts will reflect the adverse weather conditions when the harvest begins. Rice is ready for cutting. Late cabbage in the west has been much injured. Fall hay will be short. Further reports on the condition of apples confirm previous statements of a poor crop in the east, but generally a fine yield west of the mountains.

Dr. Capehart, of Avoch, is here and says the fires are destroying Hyde county. Entire farms are being consumed. One farm valued by its owner at $10,000 is now, he says, not worth $100. One man while driving along a road undermined by fire broke through and was burned to death.

Yesterday afternoon Father Griffin, the Roman Catholic priest here, baptized Tom Jones, the wholesale negro murderer who is to be hanged next Friday. Jones now talks freely about his crime, which at first he denied. He wears a sickly smile all the while and declares that he is "ready to go." The darkies have nothing to do with him. They hate him and had they been given a chance would have lynched him in a minute. He has sold his body for $10.

About 30 students who last year did not complete their examinations at the Agricultural and Mechanical College are now there, completing them. The requirement is that all examinations must be completed before new studies are taken up.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Mebane left today for Washington, N. C., to look after the negro Normal School in progress there. He last week visited the negro Normal School at Elizabeth City.

The special committee of the State Agricultural Department, which is in charge of the reception of the delegates to the counties of agricultural commissioners of the cotton States met here this morning. The convention begins its session at noon tomorrow in the lecture hall of the Agricultural Department. The committe referred to is composed of Messrs. W. R. Capehart, chairman; Waugh, McCallum, Weston and Jones. Roger N. Daniel is secretary of the Convention of Agricultural Commissioners. He arrived today.

There is no let up in the heat. Dr. Cooper Curtice, State veterinarian, returned today from a little vacation in western New York State and says the temperature was away up in the nineties there every day, and even more trying than here, since there is so much moisture, while here there is dry heat

Rev. D. H. Tuttle, in an article in the Kinston paper, says there's no telling when the drought will end, and that it is a punishment for the sins of the people.

Today a call was issued for a State convention of Democratic clubs here next month.

Today I. C. Hill, a barkeeper here 38 years old, sent for a doctor, and when the latter came, asked him to sit down and handed him a chair. At this instant Hill fell dead at the doctor's feet. He was a native of this county.

The negro murderer, Jones, yesterday afternoon held a prayer meeting in jail, for the benefit of his fellow prisoners. He made a prayer for himself that two white-robed angels would appear on the gallows and take him to heaven. Jones nickname among the negroes is "Preacher," because of his constant habit of exhorting.

President John S. Cunningham, of the Board of Agriculture, will, at the invitation of the commissioners of agriculture, make the address of welcome tomorrow to the commissioners from the other cotton States.

To the Press Convention.

Several newspaper men were here this morning on their way to the meeting of the Press Association in Asheville, among them being Messrs. J. B. Whitaker, Jr., of the Winston Sentinel; J. A. Robinson, of the Durham Sun; W. H. Thompson, of the Chapel Hill News, and Rev. J. C. Troy, of Trojan's Notion. A special car was attached to the local train for the accommodation of the editors and their friends.

ARE THEY RIGHT? If they are you should be thankful If they are not right you wrong them by trying to deceive yourself into the belief that they are. By timely heed of the little eye warnings you avoid the big ones that are sure to follow neglect. Remember the children's eyes.

PROFESSOR JOYNER ON EDUCATION.

The Logical Result of the Recent Election is That We Must Have Some Mild Form of Compulsory Education—The Parent Must Not be Allowed to Deprive the Child of His Divine Right of Education. Not a Compulsion Upon the Child But Upon the Parent.

Salisbury Truth-Index, Saturday.

Prof. J. Y Joyner, of Greensboro, spoke at the Teachers' Institute at the graded school yesterday afternoon. Prof. Joyner was greeted with great applause. He announced his subject o be the "Education of the Little Children." Education, power and prosperity travel hand in hand. Sometimes we are prone to forget the old truths. It sometimes does us good to pause and read them as they are written upon the pages of history. Egypt, Greece, Rome and other nations became the seat of education and power. Intelligence, education, culture and prosperity traveled hand in hand down the path of ages Prussia lay prostrate and bleeding. She soon realized that not armies but education must lift her up to the proud place she would occupy. The trained mind, and eye and hand that swept the Spanish fleet from the bosom of the sea; the education of the American sailor did. When the pilgrims landed they first erected a church, then a school house. From that day to this that State has led in education and prosperity. The Jamestown colonists settled upon a soil that was far more fertile than any of her predecessors. Compare the two colonists. The Southern colonists were blessed with all that go to make a people prosper The Plymouth colony settled upon the cold, bleak hills of New England. Today that one small State has more power and wealth than the whole of the Southern States. Education has done it. There lies the difference in material prosperity of the two sections. Educated brains have done it Our wonderful and untold resources of our State can only be developed by trained minds. These minds must be trained in our public schools. If this be true what are we doing in North Carolina to secure this prosperity and the development of our resources? The average man must be educated, and not the favored few. In all the past the few who have been educated in the State have stood by the welfare of our people. The foundation of education must be laid deep in the minds of the millions upon whom the government must depend. Nine out of ten of the school children of North Carolina are dependent upon the State for their education. One out of every ten are educated in our church schools. The church schools are to be commended, but what are we to do with the nine? The public schools are here to stay, the only plea is that their number be increased. It is well in our mad commercial race to read again and learn afresh the world's old truths. The right of universal education rests upon no narrow principle It rests upon the right of the child to be free and enlightened. It rests upon the right of the community to see that every child has an equal education, the right of the child to know the truth that he may be free. It rests upon the divine right to be free. The same right to dwell in the sweet light of the truth that he has to dwell in the light of the sun. It rests upon the right to be free from moral, intellectual and spiritual darkness. The State and community must protect themselves by educating the children. If there be one truth written more plainly or boldly upon the face of history, is that liberty, prosperity and happiness can not be safe in the hands of the ignorant. Oh, that man could see what ignorance is! There would be no need of men going up and down the State crying out the need of education. Ignorance is darkness, education is light; ignorance is bondage, education is freedom; ignorance, like a blind Sampson, is stalking through this fair land, liable to pull down the pillars upon which our government rests. It is so hard for men to realize what they know to be true. Intellectually, the people of North Carolina know the dangers of ignorance. They must feel it before they will act Socialism and all the hellish "isms" that curse our 20th century would be wiped out of existence if our people could only feel what they know. It is the stock argument of some people that you must not tax one man to educate another man's child. It seems plausible upon its face. But the State taxes a man to educate its child. The State, the community, has a right to do this, higher right than to tax a man to build a jail to punish another man's child for the safety of the State. The tax is not assessed to educate another man's child, but to secure his own child's happiness and security. The destiny of your child is inseperately linked with the destiny of your neighbor's child. "Who pays the tax?" "What makes your land valuable?" The fellow out in the country who earns his dollar by the sweat of his brow, is the man who pays the tax. When you pay his tax you are but rendering to Caesar what belongs to Caesar. You are but discharging that duty of protection that belongs to your child and your neighbor.

There is no reason why an education is not suitable to every man, if it be of the right kind. If darkness is better than light, if slavery is better than freedom, then ignorance is better than education. The fox dog must be trained to chase the fox and not the rabbit; the mule must be trained before he is of any value.

The last report of the United States Commissioner shows that North Carolina stands last in illiteracy, the the lowest in length of school term and salary of teachers.

There are 700,000 school children in North Carolina. 400,000 of whom are white. These must be educated for the pitiful sum of 55 cents to every man, woman, and child in North Carolina. We can not do this.

You have said in the recent election that unless they are educated they will not be fitted for citizenship. They must be educated in schools less than 68 days long.

The great obstacle that stands in the way from bottom to top, is the lack of money. More money will give better houses, better teachers and better schools. The only means of removing this obstacle is local taxation. State taxation will not do it. We have tried it It will not remove the burning shame from our faces that one in every four of our white men cannot read nor write. The wise thing to do is not to try this any more. Let every little community levy a tax to support their schools and educate the children at at its own door. The only States that have succeeded in building good schools are those that have levied this tax. Twelve have done this. Local tax furnishes nearly two-thirds of the public school funds. Massachusetts raises 95 per cent. of the school funds by local tax, and she has the best equipped schools and the best prepared teachers. We have gone as far in the way of State tax as we can go. We must supplement this by a local tax and make our schools, not three months, but five months, six months, seven months, or until the people are educated. The difference between a graded school and country is the difference between a state and a local tax of only ten cents would double the school term. The teachers must be the leaders in the fight, if we are to have any great progress along educational lines in North Carolina. We might as well face another truth: the child must be brought to school. The teacher cannot teach empty benches. We must have some mild form of compulsory education. (Applause). The parent must not deprive the child of its divine right. It is not a compulsion upon the child, but upon the parent. No power under Heaven by carelessness has the right to deprive the child of this right at a time when it is ignorant of the dangers of ignorance. This would prevent the little child from dropping out of school to bear the burdens of life, while the idle, lazy father spits tobacco and whittles on the dry goods box. Others do not realize the importance of an education. Here the strong arm of the law should take hold of that child and deliver him from the danger that surrounds him. Then in words that no pen can express, the orator painted a picture of the army of children, from Cherokee to the sea, marching from the land of darkness, through the temple of knowledge, into the land of liberty and enlightenment.

After the speaker had finished, the audience, with one impulse, joined in a prolonged applause.

A Bad Runaway.

While hitched to an unloaded wagon this morning two of Dr. D. W. C Benbow's horses became frightened and ran. Turning down West Market street, they ran over a mule and buggy belonging to Mr. Robert Weatherly, wrecking the buggy. The mule escaped injury. The horses continued to run until they reached Mr. Walter Benbow's, west of the city, where they were stopped.

The wagon was slightly damaged, one wheel being torn off.

Ants Invent a Wagon.

"There are a good many ants of different varieties on the lot at my country place, near Covington, and last year I began to make a systematic study of their habits," says a contributor to the New Orleans Times-Democrat. "Near one of my flower beds is a colony of small red ants that are extremely industrious in collecting food, and they frequently perform the most astonishing engineering feats in transporting heavy burdens to their home.

"Not long ago I watched a party of about a dozen who had found the body of a small spider and were dragging it toward the nest. The spider had hairy legs, which stuck out in every direction and caught on obstacles, greatly retarding progress. For several minutes the ants toiled away with their awkward booty and then stopped and seemed to hold a council. A minute fragment of dry leaf was lying on the ground, and presently they all lay hold and pulled the spider on top of it. Then they seized the edges and slid it along without difficulty."

A Natural Inquiry.

"Papa," said Tommy Treadway.

"Now, Tommy," replied Mr. Treadway, "I shall answer only one more question today. So be careful what you ask."

"Yes, papa."

"Well, go on."

"Why don't they bury the Dead sea?"—Household Words.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of appendicitis, nervous prostration or heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and othaches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. For sale by Grissom & Fordham.

THE FAIR.

The Telegram's interviews with forty or fifty business men Saturday showed two things. One is that all our people are interested. These interviews were taken at random and are therefore altogether representative of the feeling of our people. When so many speak as of one accord it is certainly the practically unanimous opinion of the city. The other fact is that they are all determined to help the Fair management, not only to make a great success of the first Fair, but that it shall be a permanent institution of Greensboro and this section. Anything the people of the town are united on is sure to succeed.

Talk the Fair from now till it opens, and it will be the biggest thing we've ever had.

The man, Fink, of Salisbury, who deserted his family for a week and spent the time with his miliner, published a card when he returned from the jaunt, saying he had only been off on business. This induced Mr. H. E. C. Bryant to write his experience with Fink. He says:

Fink was seen on his way to Salisbury, on the return trip, alone. Learning that Fink had money, I called on him at once and tried to persuade him to take The Charlotte Observer. In a very haughty way he dismissed me by saying: "I never read papers. They are of no use to me."

I guess he has been reading recently.

You may stake your last coin that he has. There are a good many people who turn up their nose at newspapers when asked to subscribe for them, but who read their neighbor's papers before the latter get a chance at them.

"The noblest aspirations of civilization" are, as we think all will admit, embodied in the Golden Rule: "As ye would that others should unto you, do ye even so unto them." He who comes nearest to that is the best sample of the highest civilization. Continued progress will eventually bring the entire human family up to that standard. But judging by the advance made in the nineteen centuries since Christ laid down that guide for human conduct, it may require many ages to complete the movement. Not that the race has stood still or moved backward, for it has been, and is, as a whole, grandly progressive. But the perfection implied by the rule is a condition so far above and beyond the average man of Christ's day or our day that, although each succeeding generation may get somewhat nearer to it, the goal will be a great way off for many cycles.—Washington Post.

An asymptote, as it were.

We do not know exactly what it presages, but it is certain that the vim and spirit that existed in the Republican party in 1896 does not exist today. Perhaps it is due to the fact that the party is waging a defensive campaign now, whereas, in 1896, it was making a fight upon the "ins." The "outs" always charge with more dash and vigor than the "ins." The salvation of the country always depends more largely upon the efforts of the "outs," too.

We hope that the politicians and newspapers who are now talking in a general way about what we need for the cause of education will be prepared to say something definite when the time comes.

The Spanish poet Queveda's idea of the fiddler's hell is for a fiddler to forever sit by and hear another fiddler play. The hell of an orator would be to have to sit by forever and hear an orator speak all the time.—News and Observer.

We print the excellent report by the Salisbury Truth-Index, of Prof. Joyer's speech last Saturday at that place. We invite the attention of our readers to the spot where the applause was given. It is a straw which shows the way the wind is preparing to blow in North Carolina.

The endorsement by the Populist Executive committee of Mr. Stevenson, over the protest of Butler, shows something, and will no doubt push that worthy on in his course towards the Republican party. So far as we know now he has nothing left to trade on.

ODDS AND ENDS.

A well known school man tells a story which, if it were not for his reputation for strict veracity, would be hard to believe. The gentleman who relates the story is at the head of a popular educational institution in which is a commercial department that has fitted many young men and women for successful business careers. Occasionally a student enters the school who is incapable of being fitted for any kind of career, as was the case with the young man with whom this story has to do. He was from one of the most cultured and refined families in the eastern part of the State, and was apparently a boy of intelligence and fine sense.

When he reached the school—we won't give the name, though it was located in Guilford county—he announced that he had mastered everything usually taught in such schools, except those branches in the commercial department. He wished to become proficient along this line and asked to be allowed to go to work at once. Mid-term examinations were being put up, and the youth's request to stand them was granted. In the examination of book-keeping one on the first questions asked was, "What is the difference between single and double entry book-keeping?" The new student's answer, as laboriously written in a scrawling hand, almost paralyzed the teachers who passed on it. It was:

Not having studied book-keeping but little, and therefore being not very familiar of acquaintance with the subject, I am somewhat discommoded from giving an intelligent answer to the question above named, but I think single entry book-keeping is wherein a single man keeps books and double entry book-keeping wherein a married man keeps his books.

It is safe to say that the boy never stood another examination in that school. At last accounts he was still being supported by his parents.

The density of perception displayed by some people is amazing in the extreme. The other evening, after the paper had been issued and while the tired faber shover sat at his desk trying to get a little rest after the day's exacting duties, a bashful country youth of some 18 or 20 summers stuck his head in the door and timidly asked:

"Is this The Telegram office?"

When informed that this was the place from which was issued the only newspaper south of Mason and Dixon's line, he inquired:

"Hev a telegram come to me from Hope Mills saying whether or no I could git that job that wuz promised me?"

The tired newspaper man was floored for a minute, but light broke when he understood that the fellow had telegraphed to Hope Mills for employment. The unsophisticated young man was directed across the street, where the wires annihilate distance and talk for you when the price is put up.

A popular boarding house on the Southside has among its guests three ministers—all unmarried men, too, by the way. So far as is known, there is not another boarding house or hotel in town at which so many minisiers have ever stopped at one time. The motherly landlady, who is loved by everybody who ever sat at her well-laden table, says she was thinking of buying lightning rods for her house, but since the preachers have come she feels perfectly safe and has given up the idea.

A South Elm street druggist says the soda water trade this summer has been better than for several years past. The prolonged and excessive hot weather, he thinks, is responsible for it. Then, too, more attention is paid to the soda fountain than formerly. The stores are fitted with large and handsome fountains, and the druggists are constantly on the outlook for new drinks with high-sounding and appetizing names.

THE BILTMORE BABY.

[To Miss Cornelia Stuyvesant Vanderbilt.]

We all love you, little heiress,
Baby Nell!
Dainty, dimpled millionairess,
You're the sweetest of the fairies,
Baby Nell!

You're so noisy, red and funny,
Baby Nell!
But there's not enough of money
In the world to buy you, honey,
Baby Nell!

And your pa was church-mouse pour,
Baby Nell!

Though folks said he had some store—
Till you knocked at Biltmore door,
Baby Nell!

Are you list'ning to our talk,
Baby Nell!
We are all so glad the stork
Didn't leave you in New York,
Baby Nell!

But dropped you through a crack,
Baby Nell!
In your papa's big, white shack,
Under Pisgah and the Black,
Baby Nell!

If your wee sock we could peel,
Baby Nell!
And your small, pink footies feel,
We'd find tar upon your heel,
Baby Nell!

So we love you, little heiress,
Baby Nell!
Buncombe county millionairess,
You're the sweetest of the faries,
Our own Nell!

First comes the owner of the timber. He just woke up to the value of it and wants double last year's prices. Then the sawmill man. He has not been making a fortune and thinks now he should share a little in the general prosperity

They say to us: "We must have so much for our trees and work." After a while it is "up to you." Don't kick. You don't suppose we have nerve enough to put up prices unless they had first been put up on us. No, indeed. But prices are NOT high. They have been to low and are just now getting reasonable. His Gin Rickey.

The Irishman who had never tasted a gin rickey ordered one so as to impress his friends. The bartender never had heard of a rickey, but he was ashamed to admit his ignorance, so he put a mixing glass under the bar and made a guess at it.

Then he leaned back to await results.

The Irishman sipped at the beverage and shook his head approvingly.

"By gorry, 'tis a fine rickey," he said.

"It ought to be," said the bartender. "I put in everything except the license."—Chicago Record.

Brakes.

Hand brakes, to assist in the stopping of trains, were introduced as early as 1849. Twenty years later the air-brake was patented, which enabled power from the locomotive to be transmitted through hose simultaneously to the brakes of all the cars in a train—a wonderful invention. In 1863 the coaches were connected by patent couplers, another measure of strength and safety.

STEVENSON ENDORSED.

The Populists Accept Towne's Resignation—Butler and Washburn Largely in the Minority.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—At a meeting of the People's party national committe today, the declination of Charles A. Towne as the vice-presidential nominee of the party, after a long debat, was accepted, and the name of Adlai E. Stevenson was put in his place. In the beginning there were three courses advocated by different members of the committee, viz: To nominate a Populist, to leave the place blank, or lastly, to endorse Mr. Stevenson. Senator Marion Butler, chairman of the committee, in a warm speech of some length, advocated leaving the place blank, contending that Bryan and Stevenson would receive more Populist votes than if a candidate for Vice-President was not named, but on this no vote was taken.

A motion was made to endorse Mr. Stevenson. For this motion Mr. Washburn, of Massachusetts, moved as a substitute that a Populist be placed on the ticket. The substitute was lost on a call of the roll by a vote of 24 ayes to 71 nays. The original motion was then adopted by a viva voce vote.

There were 124 of the members of the committee present, or represented by proxy.

Suicide for the Love of a Negro.

New York Special to Philadelphia Record.

Eva Miller, 18 years old, called last night at the home of Mrs. Rachel Lewis, No. 1248 Fulton street, Brooklyn, and asked for John F. Williams, a colored man, who had been stopping there. When told that she could not see him the girl drank carbolic acid.

Ambulance Surgeon Pasquale, of St. Mary's Hospital, used a stomach pump, and took the girl to the hospital, where it was said that she would die.

The police say that Miss Miller was jealous of the colored man, with whom she had been keeping company for some time. They also say the negro did not care for her. Her mother lived at No. 130 West Ninth Street, Manhattan. According to the police, Miss Miller's mother knows nothing about the matter. The girl is pretty. She has dark hair and eyes and is of medium build.

Bryan's Pastor Asked to Resign.

Richmond Times.

A special from Lincoln, Neb., says that Rev. William N. Hindman, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of which Hon. Wm. J. Bryan is a member, has been asked to resign. Pastor Hindman was formerly a Republican, but lattterly he has followed Mr. Bryan's leadership in politics. A majority of the congregation, like a majority of the people of Lincoln, are republicans, but it is denied that politics has entered into the church.

Mr. Bryan's name has not been connected with the controversy in a personal way, but friends of Dr. Hindman believe Mr. Bryan will champion his pastor's retention.

The charges against Mr. Hindman, so far as can be learned, are worldliness and lack of proper attention to pastoral duties, but no specifications are given.

Stole a Watch While the Owner Slept.

A negro went into the Banner Warehouse last night and stole a watch from Mr. W. D. Hartsell, of Sandy Ridge, who was spending the night in the warehouse. Mr. Hartsell was asleep and the watch was in a pocket of his vest, which was hanging nearby. Another gentleman in the warehouse saw the negro when he entered and left room. The police officers have been unable to locate the thief.

THE HEADLESS HORSEMAN.

An Incident That Happened In the Franco-Prussian War.

It is a peculiar circumstance that hardened and trained troops will go through a long fight surrounded by all the horrors that are inseparable from war without flinching and with the utmost apparent callousness, and the same men will be struck terrified by a single trifling incident.

Every war of any importance, particularly wars between civilized nations, is prolific in incidents of trivial character in themselves, but so unusual and unnatural that they appeal to the natural instinctive horror of men more suddenly and intensely than perhaps the main terrors of days of carnage and surrounding scenes of suffering. Such an incident is the one, for example, which occurred at the battle of Worth in the early days of the Franco-Prussian war.

In the heat of the great battle a wing of the Prussian army was charged by the regiments of French cuirassiers in the hope of turning the wing and facilitating the falling back of the French infantry. But the cuirassiers were driven back by the unflinching Prussians. Again the cuirassiers charged, and again they were driven back by the withering fire of shot and shell.

For a third time they came down again, and as the enemy waited for them to draw nearer a horrible, blood freezing terror seized the Prussians, and for a moment it looked as if they would turn and fly or be cut down without defending themselves. But in a moment they had pulled themselves together and beaten back for the third and last time the gallant cuirassiers.

The sight that terrified the Prussians appears nothing very much in black and white. It was a regiment of cuirassiers led at a dashing rate toward them by a headless officer sitting upright in his saddle and apparently encouraging his men after having been decapitated by a cannon ball.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

WHAT ARE VOLCANOES?

They Are Not Burning Mountains as We Understand That Term.

"What are volcanoes?"

Nine out of every ten persons would immediately have an answer of some sort to the question above, for have they not a lively remembrance of having learned in their schoolbooks that "a volcano is a burning mountain, from the summit of which are sent out smoke and flames?" This popular fancy has been exploded by scientists, whose work is to explode popular fancies.

In the first place, volcanoes are not necessarily mountains. In reality they are just the reverse—that is, holes in the earth's crust. Out of these are thrown the materials which, accumulating, form the heaps which we popularly call mountains.

These are, then, the result and not the cause of the action. Neither are they "burning," as we understand the term. There is no combustion, nor any action we might reasonably call "burning."

The action need not necessarily take place at the summit, for eruptions are just as frequent at the sides or even at the base. The so called "smoke" is nothing more or less than the clouds of condensing steam which are formed on every ocasion when an eruption occurs.

Lastly, the "flames," so called, are merely the reflection of the mass of molten rock and material inside the crater on the clouds of steam above, thus appearing as a glowing light. The friction, too, set up by the motion of the materials causes electricity, and hence the lightning discharges which add to the illuminating effect.—Pearson's Magazine.

THREE O'CLOCK IN THE MORNING.

There is a time of morning
When the jubilant, newborn day
And the opal tints of approaching dawn
As yet seem far away.
In the eastern sky is movement,
No glow, but impending change.
The house is filled with echoes;
Familiar rooms look strange.
Slip back the bolts and leave them;
Steal out beneath the sky;
Stand alone in an unknown world
Of awful purity.

Stand alone with folded hands,
Wait for the gift of wings,
Wait to be lifted higher,
Nearer the heart of things!

The heavens are clear and moonlit
Though the moon is on the wane;
The wind that wailed throughout the night
Drops with a sigh of pain.
A vague alarm is creeping
Over the fields and lawn;
Time pauses, night is over,
And yet it is not dawn.
Away down in the pastures
The cattle turn and moan;
All living things are troubled
With a sense of the unknown.

For they with eyes may see now,
And they who question know.
Make the most of the magic hour;
The east begins to glow!

* * * * * * *

The east is all in tumult,
The charmed hour is past,
For, breaking up the quiet skies,
The day appears at last.
—Olive Molesworth in Chambers' Journal.

The Worst of It.

Jack—Tom, I'm in a terrible fix. I'm engaged to three girls.

Tom—Well, that's not exactly a crime.

Jack—No; that's the worst of it. If it were, I could go to prison and have some peace.

The Advance of Time.

The age of man, we are told, is threescore years and ten. From 25 to 40, if the health be good, no material alteration is observed. From thence to 50 the change is greater. Fifty-five to 60, the alteration startles; still we are not bowed down. In the earliest periods of our life the body strengthens and keeps up the mind; in the later stages of it the reverse takes place, and the mind keeps up the body; a formidable duty this and keenly felt by both. Such is time's progress.—Scottish American.

BAD BLOOD, BAD COMPLEXION.

The skin is the seat of an almost endless variety of diseases. They are known by various names, but are all due to the same cause, acid and other poisons in the blood that irritate and interfere with the proper action of the skin.

To have a smooth, soft skin, free from all eruptions, the blood must be kept pure and healthy. The many preparations of arsenic and potash and the large number of face powders and lotions generally used in this class of diseases cover up for a short time, but cannot remove permanently the ugly blotches and the red, disfiguring pimples.

Eternal vigilance is the price of a beautiful complexion when such remedies are relied on.

Mr. H. T. Shobe, 2704 Lucas Avenue, St. Louis, Mo., says: "My daughter was afflicted for years with a disfiguring eruption on her face, which resisted all treatment. She was taken to two celebrated health springs, but received no benefit. Many medicines were prescribed, but without result, until we decided to try S. S. S., and by the time the first bottle was finished the eruption began to disappear. A dozen bottles cured her completely and left her skin perfectly smooth. She is now seventeen years old, and not a sign of the embarrassing disease has ever returned."

S. S. S. is a positive, unfailing cure for the worst forms of skin troubles. It is the greatest of all blood purifiers, and the only one guaranteed purely vegetable.

Bad blood makes bad complexions.

SSS purifies and invigorates the old and makes new, rich blood that nourishes the body and keeps the skin active and healthy and in proper condition to perform its part towards carrying off the impurities from the body.

If you have Eczema, Tetter, Acne, Salt Rheum, Psoriasis, or your skin is rough and pimply, send for our book on Blood and Skin Diseases and write our physicians about your case. No charge whatever for this service.

DUELING IN FRANCE.

THE CUSTOM HAS DEVELOPED A NATIONAL FIGHTING BLADE.

It Is a Long, Strong Sword, the Epee de Combat, and With It, Were the Combatants So Inclined, Serious Injuries Could Be Inflicted.

Persons other than French are wont to maintain in spite of the occasional pin pricks that the French duelists inflict on one another that French dueling is a French farce. But Frenchmen and sometimes other persons in sympathy with them insist upon being taken seriously. They insist that dueling with swords, which is the real thing in French duels, is not child's play and that compared with it the old fashioned Anglo-Saxon resort to a "pair of fives" is brutality not to be thought of by the scraping smirker of the boulevards.

The French habit of settling disputes by resort to duels with swords has developed a national dueling weapon, the epee de combat, a long and strong blade with three triangular grooves tapering to a keen point, with edges that never are used save for defense. The hand is protected with a broad, round guard shaped like the gong upon an alarm clock. The handle is straight, with no other incumbrance, and balanced by a heavy pommel which projects beyond the root of the thumb when the weapon is held ready for a thrust.

It is a modern development of the rapier with which Cyrano de Bergerac fought the bullies of Paris. It shows traces of its descent through the elegant court sword which was coming into being when D'Artagnan became a field marshal in the "Duc de Bragelonne." But its hilt makes it impossible for ordinary wear in its present shape, and the epee de combat is the weapon of the French duelist and of him alone.

In 1888 General Boulanger and M. Floquet found it necessary to settle their differences at the sword's point. The critics had not much difficulty in picking the winner between a civilian president of the chamber of deputies well advanced in years who had limited his practice to sparrow shooting with a pistol and a "brav' general" in the full ardor of his life whose sword was the symbol of his profession. Yet they were utterly mistaken.

If M. Floquet was no swordsman, he was full of quiet pluck and common sense, and he practiced one stroke only the night before the fight. A dozen times, though not too many to make his old limbs stiff the next day, he might have been seen in a well known salles d'armes straightening his arm and raising his wrist until he could only just see the point of his sword above and beyond the ball of his thumb. The next day Boulanger made a furious attack, with many stamps and flourishes. The little president stiffened his back, threw out his point, and the unlucky general impaled his neck upon the blade. Boulanger recovered, to die by his own hand after "Boulangism" had been discredited.

"Harry Alis" of the Debats suffered much more quickly from the effects of the epee. His real name was Hippolyte Percher, and in fighting a captain of infantry on the Ile de la Grande Jalte about certain scandals connected with the French Kongo he was hit in the right armpit and bled to death.

The duel fought by Catulle Mendes in May of 1899 was almost as serious, and it was caused while Bernhardt was playing "Hamlet" by some fatuous quarrel over the physical development of the prince of Denmark. M. Vanor, Mendes' opponent, was a fine swordsman and, sportsmanlike enough to recognize the double advantages he enjoyed, contented himself with parrying correctly. Catulle Mendes threw himself on his adversary's point and was severely wounded in the stomach on almost the same ground where Percher had been killed several years before.

It often is urged outside of France that French dueling consists in merely pricking your man in the hand or forearm, as the least disablement is held to "satisfy the honor" of the combatants. But the hand and arm of an adversary are those parts of him which are nearest to you and which you can reach with the least exposure of your own person.

The wound that is produced by transfixing a hand, which may be protected only by the ordinary kid glove of social custom, is not only totally disabling, but also extremely painful. Soldiers who have been shot in the palm invariably collapse for a time with the acute agony produced by the rupture of so many delicate nerve centers. A thrust in the forearm is equally effective, for it disables all the muscles and ligaments that enable a man to hold and manipulate his sword.

But though a fine duelist is always capable of these particular thrusts—and they are far more various than would be imagined at first sight—he has by no means exhausted his strokes when these have all been parried. Attacks in what is called the "lower line" are frequently successful and invariably produce an awkward wound when they succeed. The throat is as vulnerable and as often attacked as is the chest, and it must be remembered that the entire body of each assailant is open to attack and obviously to injury.

AVERTED A TRAGEDY.

The Nerve Displayed by Daniel O'Connell at a Critical Moment.

Daniel O'Connell, the famous Irish agitator, had a contempt for physical danger. On a certain occasion a meeting had been convened, and a large crowd assembled in a room on the first floor of a building in a small city in Ireland.

O'Connell was about to address the people when a gentleman, pale with fear, made his way to the platform and hoarsely whispered:

"Liberator, the floor is giving way! The beams that shore it up are cracking, and we shall fall through in a few minutes!"

"Keep silent," said O'Connell. Then, raising his voice he addressed the assembly:

"I find that the room is too small to contain the number who desire to come in, so we must leave it and hold the meeting outside the building."

At this a few rose and went out, but the majority retained their seats. Then O'Connell said:

"I will tell you the truth. You are Irishmen, therefore brave men. The floor is giving way, and we must leave this room at once. If there is a panic and a rush to the door, we shall all be precipitated into the room below, but if you obey my orders we shall be saved. Let the 12 men nearest the door go quietly out, then the next 12, and so on till all have gone. I shall be the last to leave."

His instructions were obeyed to the letter, and he waited, patient and calm, till all had gone out in safety. Then he walked quietly across the sundering, cracking floor, reaching the door just as the shattered beams gave way. And thus, by the force of his strong will, a terrible accident was averted.—Exchange.

The Carp Is Very Bony.

People marvel at the mechanism of the human body, with its 492 bones and 60 arteries, but man is simple in this respect compared with the carp. That remarkable fish moves no fewer than 4,386 bones and muscles every time it breathes. It has 4,320 veins, to say nothing of its 99 muscles.

THE WEATHER.

For North Carolina: Generally fair tonight and Wednesday.

Highest temperature at Greensboro past twenty-four hours ending eight o'clock this morning 94, lowest 71.

IN THE VILLAGE.

Some of the Minor Occurrences Today. News and Gossip.

Mr. W. F. Clegg is slightly indisposed.

Mr. A. M. Lindau and family are stopping at Hotel Clegg.

Mr. C. C. Fordham is slightly ill at his home on Edgeworth street.

Mr. and Mrs. Sutton have taken rooms at Mrs. H. G. Cartland's, on Asheboro street.

Mr. W. G. Frazier, who has been sick for a week or more, is able to be at his place of business.

An excursion from Concord to Wilmington, going by way of Goldsboro, passed through this morning.

The Southern will run an excursion to Asheville next Tuesday. The round-trip fare from Greensboro will be $4.

Rev. A. A. Little will preach at Westminster church this evening at 8 o'clock, and again tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

Those who take part in the "Living Library" are earnestly requested to be at the Banner Warehouse promptly at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

Mr. O. J. Howard, of the J. Van Lindley Nursery Company, who has been confined to his room by typhoid fever for six weeks, is slowly improving.

A farmer in the city today said that a general rain of two or three days duration just now would ruin the tobacco crop. It would bring on what is called the second growth, preventing ripening before frost.

There was a perceptible diminishing of the crowd in the court house today. The criminal docket having been disposed of, the proceedings of the court become dry and uninteresting to the crowd of loafers who usually fill the court room.

When Bees Beat Troops.

It is on record that a swarm of bees as weapons of war were used not once, but twice, and with the best possible effect.

When Themiseyra, in Pontus, was besieged by Lucullus, the Romans employed turrets, built mounds and made huge mines beneath the city. While they were creating the mines the people of Themiseyra dug down through the earth to the mines and then cast in upon the Roman workers bears and other wild animals, together with a swarm of bees.

History repeated itself in England when the Danes and Norwegians made their attack upon Chester, about ten centuries since. The town was held by the Saxons and some Gallic allies, who tried stones and boiling water upon the besiegers without effect. As a last resource they collected all the beehives and upset them into the enemy's camp beneath the city wall.

This had the effect of making things "hum," so to speak, and it is recorded that the enemy were so badly stung that they could move neither arms nor legs.

A Good Lincoln Story.

Mr. Lincoln said once that the best story he ever read in the papers of himself was this:

"Two Quakeresses were traveling on the railroad and were heard discussing the probable termination of the war.

"'I think,' said the first, 'that Jefferson will succeed.'

"'Why does thee think so?' asked the other.

"'Because Jefferson is a praying man.'

"'And so is Abraham a praying man,' objected the second.

"'Yes, but the Lord will think Abraham is joking,' the first replied conclusively."

She Was the One.

Bridegroom (after the ceremony)—Maud, you and I are now one. It only remains to be decided which is the one. I tried to win you, didn't I?

Bride—Yes, Harold.

"And I won. That seems to settle it."

"Not quite, Harold. You tried to win me. You succeeded. Then you are the winner, are you not?"

"Yes, dear."

"And I am the won."

The Patient Chinese.

An example of patient industry is the sorting of hogs' bristles as it is carried on at Tien-tsin, China. Each bristle of the 600,000 kilograms exported from that place last year had to be picked out, measured and placed in the bundle of hairs of corresponding length, and the different lengths by which the hairs are sorted are numerous.

What He Waited For.

An inspector of Irish schools tells a good story, says the Newcastle (England) Chronicle. At a school where he made a surprise visit a little boy happened to come in for the first time and stepped up to the inspector at once.

"Sit there for the present," said the inspector, indicating the desired spot.

The boy obeyed readily, and when the inspector had finished his multitudinous inquiries into the knowledge of geography, grammar and arithmetic possessed by the children he found that the boy still sat in the same spot.

"What are you waiting for, my boy?"

"Please, sir, I am waiting for the present."

EARLY FALL ADVERTISING.

The approaching autumn will witness an increase of human energy and a revival of all the activities that have languished in the heat of an extraordinary summer. Everybody will discover new wants in preparing for the coming months. Those advertisers who will be first in the field will have an obvious advantage not only in supplying the immediate needs of the community, but also in being able to lead people to form the habit of dealing with them before the competiton for trade shall become sharpest.
